Teaching Mobility Programmes and Mobility Programmes at the International Office

1. Teaching Mobility:

1.1. Non-EU Teaching Mobility

Short-term teaching visits for faculty members of Non-EU partner universities of the University of Vienna

https://international.univie.ac.at/en/incoming-staff/teachers/non-eu-teaching-mobility/

1.2. ERASMUS+ International Teaching Mobility - Incoming

The University of Vienna invites teaching staff from partner universities outside of the EU for teaching visits at the university.

https://international.univie.ac.at/en/incoming-staff/teachers/erasmus-international-teaching-mobility/

1.3. CEEPUS Teaching Staff Mobility

CEEPUS (Central European Exchange Programme for University Studies) is a Central European mobility programme

https://international.univie.ac.at/en/incoming-staff/teachers/ceepus-teaching-mobility/

2. Mobility Programmes for Researchers

"Researchers" includes all scientists and researchers, beginning with PhD students.

ASEA-UNINET
CEE Grants for Young Researchers Researcher Mobility at individual faculty level

https://international.univie.ac.at/en/incoming-staff/researchers/
3. Higher Education Projects

Thanks to their internationality and the broad range of innovation opportunities (improvement of teaching, networking with business, external effects), projects in the (higher) education sector are a major strategic instrument for the University of Vienna and constitute a further important cornerstone of third-party-funded project work. Support is given to projects that inter-alia:

- promote improvements and innovation in teaching and learning methods, and in teaching content and curricula,
- encourage the exchange on proven practices (good governance), create networks between higher education institutions and with other educational institutions and business enterprises,
- permit the provision of advice to public authorities and changes in administrative systems.

At present, the most important programme in this sector is Erasmus+. Alongside the well-known learning mobility activities for individuals, this programme also includes the previous EU programmes in the field of education and training, expanded through the addition of the fields of youth and sport. The Jean Monnet activities that are also included mean that this programme is also partly used to finance research on EU topics.

https://international.univie.ac.at/en/higher-education-projects/

4. Faculty and Staff Outgoing Mobility

The support of the international mobility of scientists and university teachers is an essential prerequisite both for their own academic careers and for the positioning of the University of Vienna within the international higher education and research areas. In addition to the mobility schemes and support provided by the University, there are both national and international (especially EU) mobility programmes that are administered in cooperation with the University of Vienna. The international office provides support to scientists and university teachers who pursue a stay abroad for research or teaching purpose.

https://international.univie.ac.at/en/outgoing-staff/

5. Faculty & Staff Incoming Mobility

There are multiple programmes for scientists and teachers from partner universities to teach or do research for a certain time at the University of Vienna.

For target-group specific information, please see:

https://international.univie.ac.at/en/incoming-staff/

Compiled by Harald Wilfling